History: Fast & Furious, IRS Targeting, and "More Flexible"
By G.S. Morris — 24 July 2017

So you say you're troubled by this Trump character? Allow me to put things into perspective.

Early in 2009, then Secretary of State Hillary Clinton made a curious statement during a television interview about the serious "problem" of American guns making their way into the hands of Mexican drug gangs. "Hum," I thought. "Wouldn't it be convenient if Mexican drug gang violence provided an excuse for further Democrat infringement upon the Second Amendment rights of American citizens?"

My suspicion of Sec. Clinton's concern for guns "walking" across the border proved to have merit. We now know the Obama Administration actively engaged in allowing firearms purchased illegally in American gun shops to cross the border and be used to kill men, women, and children. One is left to assume the story of those killed by those "Fast & Furious" Operation guns didn't rate media saturation coverage because they were "just" Mexicans?

The Obama Administration also actively engaged in using the US Internal Revenue Service to investigate and harass conservative political organizations. We're not talking about the fevered conspiracy theories of MSNBC hosts. We're talking about documented use of the IRS against law abiding Americans based upon their political beliefs. But I suppose this didn't rate a media feeding frenzy because those targeted were "just" red-necks?

Finally, speaking of Russia. "After my election, I can be more flexible." We all of course know these were the unknowingly recorded collusion words of Donald J. Trump to a Russian official on a hot microphone. Problem is, those were the words of one Barack Hussein Obama in May 2012. I haven't even brought up the sale of nearly 20% of the US uranium reserves to Russia during the Obama years. Of course, that uranium deal preceded millions of Russian dollars flowing to the Clinton Foundation's coffers. And this Trump guy is shady?

Kentucky Afield Outdoors: Thinking Ahead to Fall Hunting in the Heat of Summer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (July 20, 2017) – Fall can seem like an eternity away when the heat index soars into the triple digits and air conditioners must work overtime to meet unrelenting demand.

The arrival of the new Kentucky Hunting and Trapping Guide from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources provides a comforting reassurance that summer is marching closer to fall. The free guide ships to outlets that sell licenses and permits, but it also can be viewed and downloaded from Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's website at fw.ky.gov.

A valuable resource for anyone who plans to participate in fall hunting seasons, the annual publication lists season dates and summarizes rules and regulations for deer, elk, bear, turkey, small game, furbearers and other species. It also provides information about licensing and permit requirements, youth hunting, quota hunts, public lands hunting and much more.

Changes since last year also are highlighted in the guide. There are several to note this year, including new or expanded hunting opportunities on wildlife management areas (WMAs) and state parks. An addendum to the bear hunting section of the guide is forthcoming. It will be available on the department's website or by calling the department at 1-800-858-1549.

In addition to brushing up on the latest information, this also is a good time to start laying the groundwork for a safe and successful season.

Trail cameras have become a valued tool for many hunters. Derek Beard recently put up trail cameras on land he plans to hunt this fall in an effort to pattern deer before archery season, which this year opens Sept. 2 across the state.

"Trail cameras will give you an idea about what's there," said Beard, Bluegrass Wildlife Region coordinator for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "I look for a high megapixel cameras and this time of year I like my flash cameras. They're older trail cameras, but I like a colored nighttime picture because it helps me identify those deer a lot better and get a better idea of what they look like."

Tree stands can offer hunters an advantage in the woods, but safety should always be foremost in mind when utilizing one.

Whether a stand has been left out in the elements since last year or is new from the box, it should be thoroughly inspected. Replace any damaged tethers, straps and lines. It's also wise to inspect safety harnesses and ensure they fit properly.

If hanging a stand, pick a live tree that is relatively straight. Gabe Jenkins considers a few things before choosing a stand location.

"I want it close to where I'm expecting deer to be," said Jenkins, the deer and elk program coordinator for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "Another consideration is what type of weapon that I plan to be using in that tree stand, whether it's an archery setup or firearms or both. And accessibility."

Something else to keep in mind: the invasive emerald ash borer has ravaged ash trees in recent years. While forest floors are littered with broken and shattered ash trees and their limbs, many dead ash trees still stand.

"You need to really pay attention to the kind of tree you're putting your stands in," Jenkins said. "Especially in the Bluegrass, the dominant tree species can be ash. You do not want to put your stand in a dead ash tree or in close proximity to one."

Now is a good time to beat the fall rush and pre-register for hunter education courses. Hunters who are not license exempt and were born after Jan. 1, 1975 must carry a valid hunter education card or hunter education exemption permit while hunting. Hunter education cards are obtained by completing a hunter education course. Courses are offered in person throughout the state, online or on a CD-ROM. Register online through the department's website.

While there, explore all that it has to offer. Find a place to hunt with the WMA and Public Lands search or public shooting ranges. Buy licenses or permits. Consider subscribing to Kentucky Afield magazine, Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's award-winning publication. The upcoming fall issue will explore grouse restoration efforts, profile hunters who harvested some of Kentucky's most impressive bucks last year and preview fall hunting opportunities.

Inspirational Thoughts Into God's Word

By Lynetta Hunter

In biblical times a lion was referred to as being a dangerous wild beast with a majestic appearance and fearsome roar. Lions would freely roam the fields, blending in with the scenery, waiting on the chance to pounce on its prey. Lions are filled with power and have massive body strength. They don't have to be quick, just patient.

(1 Peter 5) Apostle Peter gave this advice, "Be sober [well balanced and self-disciplined], be alert and cautious at all times. That enemy of yours, the devil, prowls around like a roaring lion [fiercely hungry], seeking someone to devour. But resist him, be firm in your faith [against his attack—rooted, established, immovable]"

(Dan. 6, 1 Sam. 17) Both David and Daniel had an experience with a lion, Daniel was purposely placed in with lions by those who wanted to see him be devoured, David just happened upon one that was trying to kill his sheep. God shut the mouths of the lions for Daniel so his life would be saved, but David had to fight his way out. Both men were young when it happened, both had strong faith in God with astonishing abilities, and both had a long priesthood, leaving a legacy of Gods power.

This goes to show there are different ways to handle spiritual attacks. Some may require being still and letting God protect by shutting the lion's mouth, others may need to be fought by hard prayer and warfare. Daniel had the responsibility of waiting it out until the time for God's authority to be revealed, while David's responsibility was to be faithful to his obligation. Both knew how to handle their situations according to Gods future plans.
